Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 20 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A wet and windy few days.

Today:
After a dry start in the morning showers move in from the west and continue through the day, occasionally turning heavy for the afternoon. Strong winds, with coastal gales. Colder than as of late, especially in any winds. Maximum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Tonight:
Staying unsettled and windy overnight, with further showers and longer spells of rain. Winds will strengthen further with gales turning severe at times and strong inland gustiness. A mild night. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Friday:
Staying unsettled into Friday with showers, occasionally heavy and persistent. Strong winds continue, with gales turning severe at times and with strong inland gustiness. Winds then ease overnight. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Calmer Saturday, with scattered showers and sunny spells. Then turning unsettled again as band of rain arrives Sunday giving frequent showers, heavy and persistent at times, and stronger winds.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.